toolsPredictors of Chinese cancer patients' quality of life during chemotherapy: results of a multivariate analysis. This study evaluates whether the predictors of quality of life (QoL) in Chinese cancer patients are affected by their socio-demographic characteristics, mental status, and prior cancer treatment. Using a multivariate approach, the medical records of 217 Chinese cancer patients were reviewed. Subjects' QoL was assessed using the EORTC QLQ-C30 survey at the beginning and the end of their first chemotherapy. The mean (SD) age of the 217 patients was 60.9 (11.0) years and 138 (62.6%) were female. The results show that chemotherapy was related to increases in the overall, physical, emotional, social, and cognitive functioning scales in men (P30+)

Events in June 2016 1. 6th Annual AIMnet.org Global Conference on Gender And The Internet June 2-5, 2016 Cairo, Egypt The 6th Annual AIMnet.org Global Conference on Gender and the Internet will be held June 2-5, 2016 in Cairo, Egypt. The theme of the conference is the interconnectivity between gender and technology. Gender is a highly relevant topic that intersects with other aspects of human technology use. This year the conference is being held in conjunction with the International Women's Day, an annual celebration commemorating the achievements of women and of the earlier International Women's Day, March 8. AIMnet is the leading gender related website, highlighting issues in gender, sexuality, women's rights, internet and technology, gender and internet research and activism. It's target audience is individuals and organizations interested in pursuing gender studies and the intersection of gender and new media. It also hosts a network of f678ea9f9e
